

6

WAYS TO SURPRISE
YOUR PARTNER ON YOUR WEDDING DAY

ANNA LASKA
WEDDING PHOTOGRAPHER

about

As a photographer, I want to capture the small moments that are filled with genuine emotions for my couples.

My approach is to blend into the background and capture those moments when people are completely themselves.

I believe that the most authentic photographs are taken when people are unaware of the camera, and I will be there to create breathtaking photographs from ordinary moments.

While I encourage my clients to fully enjoy their wedding day, I also like to take some posed shots occasionally, ensuring they look like they came straight out of a magazine.

With my experience, attention to detail, female touch and unique perspective on the world, I transform ordinary moments into breathtaking photographs.

Anna

www.annalaska.co.uk
hello@annalaska.co.uk

6 WAYS TO SURPRISE YOUR PARTNER ON THEIR WEDDING DAY

Your wedding day will go down as one of the most memorable days of your life, so there's no reason to put any extra pressure on yourself to make anything spectacular happen outside of the actual festivities.

However, there can be little things you can do here and there to make the day that little bit extra special for the person you're about to marry.

Speaking from experience, it's the little surprises that you often end up remembering about years later.

And don't worry, I'm not talking about the 'let's practice dance routines with groomsmen for months in the lead up to the wedding' type surprise – in my opinion, there's no need to go viral for your special someone to have a memorable wedding day.

But here are a few low-key surprises you can throw your partner's way on your wedding day.

“Marriages are like fingerprints; each one is different and each one is beautiful.”

MAGGIE REYES

www.annalaska.co.uk

FLOWERS

Organising flowers to be delivered to your partner on the morning of your wedding can be just the thing to get the day started right.

After all, there's a fair chance you've just spent your first night away from each other in a long time, and what better way to let them know you were thinking of them and how special the rest of the day is going to be than with a bunch of their favourite flowers.

A LOVE LETTER

Sitting down and writing a handwritten note (no computers here, please) puts a unique touch to an already unique surprise. Seriously, when's the last time you gave a handwritten note to your loved one or anyone? I suggest giving it to the Maid-of-Honour or Bestman ahead of time so that the note can be delivered to your partner nice and early in the morning. And don't worry, you don't have to be Shakespeare to make this a memorable piece. Start with how you're feeling about the day, add a memory from the first time you met and end with how you can't wait to spend the rest of your life together. Bingo bango, you've got a love letter!

THE HOTEL

Note: The romance doesn't end when the reception ends!

Most hotels will do a little something special for a couple when they find out it's their wedding night. Champagne in the room, rose petals on the bed – they're classics. I'd suggest asking your hotel if they do anything just to make sure.

How memorable will it be to go back to your back room to discover flowers and a card that read: 'Congratulations (your surname) on your wedding day. If your hotel doesn't, perhaps you could organise it yourself. It's the perfect end to an amazing day!

LOVE NOTE JOURNAL

In the run up to your wedding keep a journal and write down all the reasons why you love your partner – it could be small things, like the way they always make you tea in your favourite cup, or big things like taking care of you when you're sick. Present them in a beautiful journal for your other half to read through on the morning of the wedding.

PLAN A MOMENT AWAY

A good question to ask your wedding venue is if there is a space where you can go after your wedding ceremony, just the two of you, to let it all sink in. You could arrange for a couple of glasses of bubbly and some candles to be waiting in a room or take a romantic stroll together. Your partner will appreciate all the effort you've gone to just to have a few moments of their time.

GET YOUR RINGS ENGRAVED

Steal away your wedding rings before the ceremony and get them engraved with something meaningful – whether that's the date you met or a favourite song lyric or quote.

SO THERE YOU HAVE IT!

My top list of simple surprises that will make your wedding day stick in your minds when you are chatting on your anniversary for years to come, and given they don't take that much extra effort, you'd be mad not to give one or two a go.

Bonus points if you tick off the whole list! ;)

READY TO BOOK A CHAT? CLICK HERE

Sending love!

Anna

hello@annalaska.co.uk
www.annalaska.co.uk